

PROPOSAL · AUGUST 2026

neXtHer

Building the brand — content, positioning and the funnel underneath it.

Prepared for Juhi Agarwal, Founder

Prepared by ProductionX

What you asked for

“A digital production partner who can help me film, edit, publish, and grow high quality content as we build the brand together.”

We can do that. But before quoting for filming, we read your account, read your references, and researched the market you're entering.

What we found changes what we think you should buy — and we'd rather tell you that upfront than sell you the thing you asked for and watch it not work.

Your account is advertising four different businesses

Bio headline	Overcome burnout
Bio sub-line	Mindset · Healing · Confidence
All 34 posts	Save your marriage
Caption CTA	Book a Relationship Clarity Call
neXtHer — the actual company	AI, income and independence

A stranger cannot tell what you do — and relationship content brings in followers who will never buy an AI programme.

Your reference account proves the thesis works

415,000

followers

@upgradingkatie

“Mom routines · money · glowup” — mothers, AI, income. Built in about a year.

1

The concept is proven.

You are not betting on an untested idea. Only on execution.

2

Nobody is doing it in India.

Not in Hinglish, not for Indian mothers. We checked.

3

The window is open now.

This format found its footing in the last twelve months. It won't be open in 2027.

Mel Robbins is the wrong template — for now

Why copying it fails

Her Instagram is distribution for a #1 bestselling book, a top-tier podcast and a live tour. The account is downstream of the authority, not the cause of it. Quote cards work because they say Mel.

But one thing transfers

Her whole career rests on naming a mechanism. The 5 Second Rule. The Let Them Theory. Not advice — a named, repeatable thing people describe to each other when she isn't in the room.

neXtHer needs one — and it should exist before we film anything.

Katie is the blueprint. Mel is the destination. The distance between them is a named idea and ten years.

We want to sell you less filming than you asked for Katie's 415,000 followers were built on selfie-camera video — handheld, in her kitchen, in her car. No lighting, no crew. In this niche, low production is a trust signal: she looks like the woman watching her.

Lower priority

- Cinematography and lighting
- Location and b-roll shoots
- Colour grading and polish

Higher priority

- Volume — 5 posts a week
- Fast turnaround, every week
- The funnel and the comment engine

Your b-roll shoots are the most expensive thing on your account and the least effective.

34

posts published

Zero of them have you speaking on camera.

No talking-head, no voice, no piece to camera. For a brand whose product is your judgement, this is the biggest unlock available to you — and it costs nothing.

Not a film crew

A system that gets you posting five times a week in your own voice, with a funnel underneath it.

01

Settle the positioning

Decide the pivot, build the named method and the public experiment — so content has something to be about.

02

Run the content engine

You shoot on your phone. We do everything after that: edit, caption, cover, publish, report.

03

Build the funnel

WhatsApp list, DM automation, store, the paid workshop, then the cohort.

Strategy Sprint

₹45,000

one-time · credited back

Nothing else starts until this is done. Filming against unresolved positioning produces expensive noise.

- 1

Positioning decision
Does the account become neXtHer, or does neXtHer get its own?
- 2

The named method
Your 5 Second Rule — the thing people repeat when you're not there.
- 3

The public experiment
Your version of Katie's "86 days" — start date, rule, clock.
- 4

The one thing you teach
Narrowed to a single sellable skill. Our recommendation is specific.
- 5

Profile rebuild
Bio, highlights, and the START HERE / HOW IT WORKS pinned set.
- 6

Voice guide
From a 90-minute interview, so captions sound like you, not like AI.
- 7

Competitive sweep
Is anyone already doing this in Hinglish for Indian mothers?
- 8

Insights audit + 90-day plan
Your real numbers, then content themed and scripted to hook level.

Three ways to run it

Lean

₹35,000

per month

For starting carefully while cash is tight.

- 12 reels/month (3 a week)
- Captions, covers, hashtags
- Publishing and scheduling
- WhatsApp list set up
- Monthly report

Engine

₹65,000

per month

The full system. What actually moves an account from 1,209.

- 20 reels/month (5 a week)
- 4 YouTube long-form/month
- DM keyword automation
- Comment triage
- Weekly report + strategy call

OUR RECOMMENDATION

Partnership

₹30,000

per month + 15% of product revenue

You said "as we build the brand together." This is us taking that literally.

- Everything in Engine
- Launch support included
- Lower cash risk for you
- No share of your 1:1 income
- We win only if it works

Why we'd rather share the risk

You're pre-revenue on neXtHer. A ₹65,000 monthly cheque is a real risk for you right now.

1

Cuts your cash exposure by more than half

₹30,000 a month instead of ₹65,000.

2

Ties our income to whether it actually works

15% of workshops, cohorts and digital products — during the engagement and 6 months after.

3

If we're right, we do better than Option B

If we're wrong, we've earned less. Which is how it should be.

Your 1:1 coaching income stays entirely yours.

What you do, and what we do

YOU

- Shoot on your phone — about 30 minutes a week
- 20 minutes a day in your own DMs and comments
- Teach, run calls, close sales
- Show up on camera, talking, in Hinglish

US

- Everything after the footage lands
- Draft replies for the repetitive messages
- Build the funnel that fills your calendar
- Coach you through the first month of it

The 20 minutes a day is a condition, not a preference. The funnel dies without you in it, and no agency can fake being the coach.

Why three months

When you stop posting marriage content, your reach will drop for roughly 3–6 weeks while Instagram re-learns who to show you to.

This is normal, it is expected, and it is the single most likely way this plan fails — because month two feels like proof it isn't working.

We'd rather agree it now, in writing, than argue about it in week three. The minimum term protects you from your own reasonable panic — and us from being judged on a dip we told you was coming.

What the first quarter looks like

Illustrative shape, not a forecast. The dip is the part people quit during.

What success looks like at 90 days

Follower count is the least useful number you have. This is what we'll report against.

Followers will land around 5,000 — engaged and correctly shaped.

Anyone promising you 100,000 followers in 90 days is selling something. Katie took about a year, and she posted 369 times. You've posted 34. Volume is the gap — and it's the least glamorous item on this list.

The honest risks

We'd rather you hear these from us than discover them in month two.

Your audience may not pay for AI training.

We don't know this yet. The ₹999 workshop in week 5 is the cheapest possible test — run it before anyone builds a cohort. If it doesn't sell, you've lost no build cost and we'll say so.

You may not have a result of your own to teach from.

Then the first 60 days are you landing your own paying clients, on camera. That becomes the content, the proof and the curriculum at once.

“AI income” has bad neighbours.

Demonstration over claims. Screen recordings, real outputs, no income figure without the work behind it. This is a positioning asset, not a limitation.

RECOMMENDED START

Where we'd begin

Week 0	Strategy Sprint — ₹45,000
Weeks 1–12	Partnership — ₹30,000/mo + 15%
Week 5	First paid workshop
Week 12	Review. Cohort, or stop.

₹90,000

across three months after the sprint is credited back

One 45-minute call.

We'll walk you through the positioning finding and the named-method idea before you commit to anything. If you disagree with the diagnosis, there's no point discussing the price.
